We've been in this school for five years now, and there is a sense of stagnation. Everyone is doing the same things: rereading the work of their favorite authors, doing group compositions of the writers' names, writing their names in big letters, learning to use the bathroom. It's the same thing we've done the past four years. Our five-year report card: Creativity We are creative. We know that there are 300 students in this school and we all have our own things that we like doing. But we need to do more than this. We need to use our creativity to create new things in our life, instead of having a little novel about the time that Kristen spent in the bathroom. If we just focused on the fact that there are lots of different things in the world, we could all do more than just fill up our library with our favorite authors. We could make a movie about the time that I won the musical choir 55cdcl1c
